NEEDS
Clinical neurology continues to evolve with the advances in science and technology. This activity will provide an update on the diagnosis, treatment, and management of common neurological problems faced by family physicians, internists, and neurologists in daily practice. Where applicable, the faculty will discuss evidence-based clinical practice guidelines/practice parameters to guide clinical decision-making.

TARGET AUDIENCE AND OBJECTIVES
Neurologists, internists, family physicians.

At the conclusion of the activity, participants should be able to:
• Describe appropriate use of antithrombotics in secondary stroke prevention.
• Discuss current recommendations for evaluation and treatments of status epilepticus.
• Discuss new and emerging treatment of multiple sclerosis.
• Evaluate patients with traumatic brain injury and understand potential short-term and long-term consequences in this population.
• Discuss the approach to the patient with a painful condition affecting the peripheral nervous system.
• Describe the evolving field of neuro-genomics (neuromics) and how it relates to care of individual patients in a neurology clinic.
• Evaluate the role of the child and adult neurologist in the evaluation and management of individuals across the lifespan.

ACCREDITATION/CREDIT DESIGNATION

Baylor College of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

Baylor College of Medicine designates this educational activity for a maximum of 13.25 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should only claim credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

In order to meet the requirements of the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education it is the policy of Baylor College of Medicine that all individuals who are in a position to control the content of a CME activity (activity director, planning committee members, and faculty) disclose relevant financial relationships with commercial interests. All identified conflicts of interest are managed to help ensure that that the educational material is scientifically based, accurate, and objectively presented. Specific disclosure will be made to the participants prior to the educational activity.

The presentation, Doctors in the Courtroom: Plaintiff, Defendant, and Witness, has been designated by Baylor College of Medicine for 1.0 credit of education in medical ethics and/or professional responsibility.
